HSforBC Dog Program volunteers adopt longest shelter resident

By Mary Ann Garber

Kane Atlas McFadden runs joyfully across the grass on a beautiful Autumn day.

Kane finally found his forever home.

After living at the shelter for 1,129 days and setting the record for longest resident, the handsome gray and white American Pit Bull Terrier mix got lucky on Friday the 13th of October when Dog Program volunteers Betsy Smith and Jeremy McFadden adopted him.

Smith formed a close bond with Kane while helping provide care for canine residents at the shelter each week. Her husband also bonded with the 4-year-old dog as the months turned into years and no one chose him due to his special needs.

HSforBC staff members and volunteers celebrated Kane's adoption with a party on October 13 before he left the shelter to go home. A WISH-TV Channel 8 reporter was there to document his "Gotcha Day" festivities and Kane was also featured in Newsweek's national online magazine.

"We thought about this for a long time," McFadden said during the party. "I think this will be good for us, and especially good for [Kane]. ... This is a good day."

Festivities included a dog cake for Kane and large sheet cake with his photo on it for the party guests.

"Kane has always left out the back door [of the shelter for outings]," executive director Susan Austin said. "Today he's leaving through the front door [to go home]."

Dog Program volunteers cheered and cried happy tears when the goofy dog they all love walked out the door of the shelter on a leash with Smith and McFadden then climbed into their car to begin his new life as a beloved pet.

Smith said preparations for Kane's adoption and homecoming included gradual introductions to their two dogs as well as installing a large kennel in their heated garage and mounting a television on the wall there to entertain him and help with his transition from life at the shelter to living in their home.

More than three years after his arrival at the shelter, Kane Atlas McFadden has happily settled into a wonderful new life with his favorite people.

Dog Program volunteer Nikki Hunter laughs as shelter dog Toby licks Kane's face during a recent hike on the Big Four Trail.

"He made it through his first night very well," Smith said the next day. "Our goal is to keep him safe and happy. He had the very best send-off celebration that we couldn't even have dreamed of and we were surprised at every moment! This is a marathon and we are on board to see it through at his mental and emotional pace."

Kane is a "resource guarder," she said, who will chew and eat just about anything so he has to be closely supervised when not safe inside his large kennel.

"He eats things he's not supposed to as a way of coping with life," Smith explained. "His [resource] guarding leads him to ingest things he shouldn't, and unfortunately with his colon they tend to get stuck so he has trouble passing them without surgery. He has already had a couple surgeries that the shelter blessedly let him go through to save his life. Unfortunately, each surgery causes more scarring inside so there are not an unlimited number of times they can do it."

Kane's habit of resource guarding limited his ability to be adopted, she said, because he has to live in a safe space with very close supervision when outside his kennel.

"Ultimately, his biggest difficulty with joining a home is that he does require constant monitoring because he could find any little thing like a bottle cap or an old glass bottle in the garbage and end up in real danger," Smith said. "Obviously in a family with children that would not work due to toys, etc. But with our family we are willing to be as diligent as humanly possible to protect him from this natural tendency he has by keeping him medicated, healthy, and emotionally loved and comfortable so that he will hopefully grow out of some of those tendencies in time. Or at least they will start to diminish over time in a healthy, loving, stable and predictable environment."

Other Dog Program volunteers who provided shelter care for Kane and are friends with Smith and McFadden have promised to help them if necessary.

On a warm and sunny late October day, Dog Program volunteer Nikki Hunter brought Kane's shelter friend Toby—a handsome black and white American Pit Bull Terrier mix who is available for adoption—to the Big Four Trail for a hike with Smith and Kane. It was a joyous reunion for the dogs and fun exercise time for Smith and Hunter too. Toby was delighted to see his dog friend again and licked Kane's face.

"He is so beloved by this [HSforBC] community," Smith said, "and we feel honored to be his family."

HSforBC Board of Directors thanks retiring members for service

By Mary Ann Garber

Longtime Board member Dawn Walker of Lebanon completed seven years of service as a director and will continue to lead the Cat Program. She received this framed print as a thank you gift for her volunteer leadership.

Three retiring members of the HSforBC Board of Directors—Tracy Ridings of Zionsville, Nicholas Topoll of Whitestown and Dawn Walker of Lebanon—were honored for their years of service during the October 19 meeting.

President Amy Rader and Susan Austin, executive director, expressed their gratitude to Ridings, Topoll and Walker for their dedication and commitment to helping HSforBC further its mission of rescuing homeless dogs and cats in Boone County.

Dr. Amy Rader of Thorntown, a veterinarian with NVA Zionsville Animal Hospital, will continue her leadership service as Board president during 2024. One of her ongoing goals is to increase HSforBC's visibility in Boone County because "we would not be able to succeed in our mission without community support" from caring people.

Also continuing their leadership service on the Board are Pam Verberg of Lebanon, vice president; Greg Sigman of Zionsville, treasurer; and Laura Alter of Zionsville, secretary.

Other volunteer members of the Board of Directors who are dedicated to fulfilling HSforBC's mission of service "For the Love of Animals" are Kristin Alosinac of Indianapolis, Kathleen "Kat" Bowers of Brownsburg, Tiffany Edwards of Zionsville, Kevin Estes of Whitestown, Denis Oberg of Zionsville, Denise Pierce of Zionsville, Jason Roberts of Zionsville, Laura Slick of Zionsville and Allison Upchurch of Zionsville.

Their affection is timeless,
Their Devotion is ageless,
And their love is forever...

Lebanon High School senior helps HSforBC as intern

By Wendy Gabers

Lebanon High School senior Autumn Barnes is enjoying her HSforBC internship.

Autumn Barnes, a senior at Lebanon High School, is currently interning at HSforBC with the Internship Program through the Lebanon Community School Corporation. She works approximately six hours per week at the shelter, and will help for the entire school year while still attending classes and holding down a part-time job!

The internship program is designed to allow students to explore potential career interests and discover and nurture their talents. Barnes, who has previously volunteered with her mom at HSforBC as well as adopting a dog from the shelter, is excited about her internship. She has been involved in a variety of shelter operations activities and anticipates assisting with social media activities in the future.

"I'm so thankful for this internship because it allows me to help the animals in any way possible," said Barnes, who wants to pursue a career as a zoologist. "Because I've volunteered here and had an adopted dog, I know how important the shelter is to animals in need and to the community."

Welcome aboard, Autumn. We're happy to have you on the volunteer team!

Day of Service volunteers help HSforBC with shelter work and events

By Nancy Comiskey

Last month was HSforBC's biggest of the year for Day of Service volunteers, and that's a lot to be thankful for. Nearly 30 volunteers from five businesses donated 141 hours of their time in October to the shelter.

On October 6 alone, 10 volunteers each from GXO and Festool in Lebanon trimmed overgrown walkways, weeded flowerbeds and spread "a mountain of mulch," said Jackie Nowinski, HSforBC's volunteer manager. The Boone County Economic Development Corporation initiated the October 6 Day of Service.

Day of Service volunteers are vital to the shelter, she said. Depending on the day and the need, volunteers may work outside, bag food for the Pet Pantry, deep clean an area of the shelter or organize the supplies.

The teams help complete tasks that regular volunteers may not be available to do. "And they get the work done quickly," Nowinski said. "They can do in two hours what it would take one volunteer all day to finish."

Day of Service

Two years ago, Kendra Anderson, a sales agent with Seven Corners Travel Insurance, came to HSforBC and adopted Matilda, a Siamese kitten rescued with her 4-week-old littermates at Ray's Trash Service in Whitestown. The mama kitty could not be found so the tiny kittens were bottle fed by Dawn Walker, HSforBC's Cat Program director, who fostered them for two months until they were old enough for adoption.

When Anderson's company was considering volunteer opportunities, she suggested the Humane Society. Anderson enjoyed her Day of Service so much that she's now a regular cat care volunteer on the first Friday of every month.

"You feel like you're among like-minded people," Anderson said. "They all go above and beyond to care for the animals and give them a little extra attention."

Day of Service teams may range in size from two to 10 or more and may volunteer for two or three hours or an entire workday. In addition to GXO, Festool and Seven Corners, other businesses that sent teams to HSforBC this year include Forum Credit Union, Salesforce, Amazon, Resultant, RCI and Keystone Home Lending, LLC.

Another 26 volunteers from the Lebanon Future Farmers of America and the National Charity League helped with HSforBC's "5K Run for Rescue" fundraiser on October 28.

Both the Humane Society and the service teams benefit from the volunteer experience.

"The teamwork and bonding that you do with your team there would be hard to match," Anderson said. "When you're together working with the animals, it lets you see a different side of each other."

Companies interested in participating in the Day of Service program can contact Jackie Nowinski at HSforBC at 877-473-6722 for more information.

Village Dance Studio partners with HSforBC for 'Muttcracker' calendar

By Tiffany Byers

Ballerina Zoe Weaver poses with five busy kittens during the photo session for the 2024 "Muttcracker" calendar. Profits from the fundraiser benefit HSforBC's mission of rescuing homeless dogs and cats.

After a five-hour photoshoot with Village Dance Studio dancers and HSforBC cats and dogs, the 2024 "Muttcracker" calendars are officially in production!

This is the second year that Village Dance Studio has worked with HSforBC to produce the "Muttcracker" calendars. They donate all profits of the calendar sales to HSforBC. Last year, they donated $2,500 to HSforBC.

Prior to last year's donation, a dog was adopted at the "Muttcracker" photo session by a family member of one of the ballerinas.

The donations from the calendar sales help HSforBC take care of the dogs and cats at the shelter until they find their forever homes.

HSforBC is grateful to the Village Dance Studio and dancers, and would also like to thank photographer Jon Ellegood and TF Publishing for donating their time to this project.

Keep an eye out for announcements of calendar sales in the upcoming weeks. They will cost $20 and be available at a variety of local businesses in Carmel, Whitestown and Zionsville with a special two for $35 deal at Village Dance Studio.

Calendars can also be purchased at Village Dance Studio's "Nutcracker Short & Suite" event on December 10.

'Run for Rescue 5K-9 Run/Walk' sets event record

By Wendy Gabers

This year's "Run for Rescue 5K-9 Run/Walk" hosted by L.A. Cafe and Moontown Brewery Company on October 28 saw a record number of participants with more than 150 human runners and walkers and many four-legged furry friends.

Landon Rivera posted a time of 20.36.6 minutes to win the men's division while Emilie Hill finished in 27.57.2 minutes to take top honors in the women's division. Both winners received a $50 gift card and an HSforBC sweatshirt.

Christmas came early at the "Run for Rescue!" Fan favorite Farren Cook and her young bulldog, Bennett, won the Best Halloween Costume contest dressed as the Grinch and Cindy Lou Who.

Cookies, bananas and bottled water—and a refreshing half-print of Moontown's own brew for age appropriate participants—awaited the runners and walkers in the 1915 Room at Moontown Brewery. On display were a variety of items and gift certificates offered during the event's silent auction.

"With the event registrations, donations for the silent auction and sponsorships, we raised more than $16,000 to help the dogs, cats, puppies and kittens in need at HSforBC," explained Susan Austin, executive director. "We couldn't do this event without the support and generosity of our wonderful sponsors."

Many volunteers also contributed to the success of the fundraiser, Austin said. "A special thank you to the Whitestown Police Department, Lebanon Future Farmers of America, mothers and daughters of the Zionsville National Charity League (NCL), and the many HSforBC volunteers who all work together to ensure a safe and successful event to support animal rescue in Boone County."

HSforBC earns 'No-Kill Shelter' award for 2022

By Mary Ann Garber

The Best Friends Network has recognized HSforBC as a "No-Kill Shelter" for exceeding a 90 percent save rate for cats and dogs during 2022 thanks to exceptional volunteer service.

"We received this award because of our volunteers' dedication, support and lifesaving efforts," executive director Susan Austin said. "Congratulations! You all are making a huge difference! HSforBC's actual save rate was 94.7 percent."

Julie Castle, chief executive officer of the Best Friends Animal Society, said HSforBC has "joined an elite group of organizations across the country who are leading the way toward making us a no-kill nation by saving more than 90 percent or more of the animals in your shelter."

The national award represents HSforBC's dedication and leadership in animal rescue work, Castle said, and "the incredible milestone you've reached on behalf of the animals we all love."
